UNILEVER CFO TO STEP DOWN

Jim Lawrence to leave Unilever at end of year

Unilever today announced that its Chief Financial Officer, James A Lawrence, has decided to resign from the boards of Unilever.

Lawrence, 57, who joined the company in September 2007, will step down from the boards of Unilever PLC and Unilever N.V. at the end of the year.

said: "It's been an excellent time for me and I have made many good friends among my colleagues in the company. I'm delighted that Unilever is in such great shape for our shareholders and, having seen the company through an important period of transition, I'm now looking forward to pursuing new opportunities." Michael Treschow, Chairman of Unilever, said: "I greatly appreciate Jim's significant contribution, both as Unilever's Chief Financial Officer and as a fellow board member and I wish him every success in the future" Paul Polman, Chief Executive of Unilever, said: "We'd all like to thank Jim for the valuable experience and perspective he brought to Unilever during an important period in the company's development. We wish him well in his future endeavours."

Jim Lawrence will make himself available in the New Year to facilitate a smooth transition to his successor who will be announced shortly.
