Item 2.06. Material Impairments

On February 8, 2017, management of Lands' End, Inc. ("Lands' End," "we," "our," or the "Company") concluded that we expect to record a non-cash charge in the fourth quarter of fiscal 2016 related to an impairment of our indefinite lived trade name asset, Lands' End. The Company performs its annual impairment tests as of the close of its November fiscal month, or more frequently if an event occurs or circumstances change that would more likely than not reduce the fair value of the asset below its carrying value. The Company considers the income approach, specifically the relief from royalty method, to estimate the fair value of its trade name asset, based on the assumption that, in lieu of ownership, a firm would be willing to pay a royalty in order to exploit the related benefits of the trade name. The relief from royalty method involves the application of estimated royalty rates to projected revenue streams, which are discounted to present value to estimate the cost savings associated with ownership of the asset. In the Company's quarterly reports on Form 10-Q for fiscal 2016, the Company disclosed that if actual results were not consistent with estimates used in estimating the future revenue streams in the fiscal 2015 impairment analysis, the Company may be exposed to further losses. During the fourth quarter of fiscal 2016, the Company experienced a continued decline in revenues that negatively impacted the Company's future revenue forecasts and the future projected revenue growth rates. Based on the preliminary results of our annual trade name impairment review we expect to record an impairment charge for our trade name asset in the range of $170 million to $180 million in the fourth quarter of fiscal 2016. This non-cash impairment charge would not have an effect on the Company's operations, liquidity or financial covenants, and would not impact management's long-term strategy.

These management decisions were reported to the Audit Committee of the Board of Directors on February 8, 2017.
