Subject Companies: Hughes Electronics Corporation Commission File No. 0-26035 General Motors Corporation Commission File No. 1-00143 Date: December 20, 2001

On December 20, 2001, EchoStar Communications Corporation publicly distributed the letter set forth below, addressed to each of the addressees on the list following the letter.

December 20, 2001

The Honorable [name of addressee] United States House of Representatives

Dear Representative:

We are pleased that you and your colleagues on the Rural Caucus have shown an interest in the proposed merger of EchoStar Communications Corporation and Hughes Electronics in your letter to Attorney General John Ashcroft and FCC Chairman Michael Powell. The Caucus has always been a strong advocate for issues important to rural America, and it is not surprising that your group was the first to go on the record.

The heightened interest concerning the proposed merger is encouraging. Both EchoStar s DISH Network and Hughes Electronics DIRECTV got their start in rural America. Our early adopters were among the first customers in the nation to receive an all-digital satellite television service, expanded programming, and quality customer service. These same services were not widely available from cable in the cities and suburbs. We have always counted on our subscribers in rural areas as among our most loyal, and they will continue to be a vibrant part of our future.

We believe the merger will enable the new company to offer even more benefits to consumers in rural America than currently available. For example, the efficiencies resulting from the merger will allow the combined company to provide more than 100 metropolitan areas with their local channels and at least one metropolitan area in each state with their local broadcast channels delivered via satellite. More high definition TV programming and new interactive services will also be available than would be possible without the merger. In addition, the merger will create the economies of scale necessary to offer more competitive prices for programming and to launch a competitively priced high-speed Internet access service in rural America, which helps close the digital divide.

Each of our companies has offered programming on a uniform, nationwide pricing basis since the launch of small dish satellite TV service in 1994. This pricing structure extends the benefits of competing with cable companies in urban areas to those who live in the most remote areas. The merged company intends to continue this nationwide pricing structure. In fact, testifying on December 4 before Congress, we said,

Edgar Filing: HUGHES ELECTRONICS CORP - Form 425

We re willing to commit to continue to do that [uniform nationwide pricing] in whatever way the regulatory officials would like us to do so, [so] that people in rural America get all the benefits of broadband, high definition television, local-into-local in true competition with cable at the very lowest price of anywhere in the country.

-- Charles W. Ergen at Hearing of the Telecommunications and Internet Subcommittee of the House Energy and Commerce Committee

This means customers in rural America can rest assured that they will continue to pay the same monthly rate as customers in big cities where competition with cable companies is more prevalent.

We look forward to working closely with you and the Rural Caucus throughout the merger process. Once the government officials closely examine all of the issues surrounding our proposed merger, we believe it will be approved, and rural Americans will benefit from the decision.

Sincerely,

Charles W. Ergen Chairman and CEO EchoStar Communications Corporation Eddy W. Hartenstein Chairman and CEO DIRECTV, Inc.
