HOUSTON, TEXAS, JUNE 10, 2003--Tennessee Gas Pipeline Company, a subsidiary of El Paso Corporation (NYSE:EP), today announced the completion of construction and the beginning of service on its Can-East Project that extends its system in northern Pennsylvania to Leidy, Pennsylvania.

"This project demonstrates Tennessee's ability to provide natural gas from a variety of supply basins to growing markets in the Northeastern region of the United States," said Stephen C. Beasley, president of Tennessee Gas Pipeline Company. "It also illustrates the company's expertise for developing scalable projects to meet specific market requirements."

The Can-East Project includes a long-term lease for 130,000 dekatherms of natural gas per day (Dth/d) of capacity on the Dominion Transmission, Inc., pipeline system with an interconnect at Leidy, as well as a new compressor station on the Tennessee pipeline at Ellisburg, Pennsylvania, to facilitate the firm transportation service. The company has executed long-term firm transportation agreements with customers for 111,000 Dth/d of natural gas supplies received from various parts of its system including the Gulf Coast; Dracut, Massachusetts; and Niagara Falls, New York. Tennessee will be hosting an open season for the remaining 19,000 Dth/d of unsubscribed capacity resulting from this expansion project in accordance with its Federal Energy Regulatory Commission Gas Tariff.

More detailed information about the open season can be obtained on Tennessee's Electronic Bulletin Board or by contacting Bob Bookstaber, manager of Business Development for Tennessee Gas Pipeline, at (832) 676-5199 or email at bob.bookstaber@elpaso.com.
