ItemSource and Amount of Funds or Other Consideration

The source of funds used to purchase the Issuer's securities reported as beneficially owned by the reporting persons on this Schedule (the "Securities") was the working capital of Navigator and certain client accounts for which Steelhead serves as the general partner and/or investment manager. The amount of funds used to purchase the Securities was approximately $50,062,000.

ItemPurpose of Transaction

The Securities were acquired for investment purposes, and the reporting persons' acquisitions of the Securities were made in the ordinary course of business and were not made for the purpose of acquiring control of the Issuer.

On October 8, 2008 Steelhead sent a letter to the Board of Directors of the Issuer (the "Steelhead Letter") raising questions about the current approval of a bridge financing facility for Challenger Energy Corp. and certain conflicts of interest believed to exist because Greg Noval, Chairman of the Issuer, also has a sizable interest in Challenger Energy Corp. and serves as its Chairman. The Steelhead Letter calls for answers to certain questions on or before the close of business on October 10, 2008. The Steelhead Letter is attached hereto as Exhibit 2 and is incorporated herein in its entirety.

Consistent with its investment purposes, Steelhead may engage in communications with one or more officers of the Issuer and/or one or more members of the board of directors of the Issuer, with respect to various matters relating to the Issuer, including but not limited to its operations. Steelhead may discuss ideas that, that if effected may result in changes in the board of directors or management of the Issuer.

Although the reporting persons have no specific plan or proposal to acquire or dispose of the Issuer's securities, consistent with their investment purposes, the reporting persons may, at any time and from time to time, acquire additional securities of the Issuer or dispose of any or all of such securities depending upon an ongoing evaluation of the investment in the securities, prevailing market conditions and other investment opportunities.

Except to the extent the foregoing may be deemed a plan or proposal, none of the reporting persons has any plans or proposals which relate to, or could result in, any of the matters referred to in paragraphs (a) through (j) of Item 4 of Schedule 13D. The reporting persons may, at any time and from time to time, review or reconsider their position and/or change their purpose and/or formulate plans or proposals with respect thereto.

Steelhead Offshore, as the general partner of Navigator, Steelhead, as the sole member of Steelhead Offshore and as the investment manager of Navigator and certain client accounts, and Mr. Johnston and Mr. Klein, as the member-managers of Steelhead, may be deemed to beneficially own the shares owned by Navigator and/or such client accounts in that they may be deemed to have the power to direct the voting or disposition of the shares. Neither the filing of this Schedule nor any of its contents shall be deemed to constitute an admission that any of Steelhead Offshore, Steelhead, Mr. Johnston or Mr. Klein is, for any other purpose, the beneficial owner of any such securities, and Steelhead Offshore, Steelhead, Mr. Johnston and Mr. Klein disclaim beneficial ownership as to such securities except to the extent of their respective pecuniary interests therein. For the purposes of this Schedule, Steelhead Offshore, Steelhead, Mr. Johnston and Mr. Klein beneficially own 19,739,215 shares of Common Stock (which includes all of the Issuer's shares beneficially owned by Navigator), and the percentage of Common Stock beneficially owned by such reporting persons is 12.9%.

STEELHEAD LETTER

October 8, 2008

To the Board of Directors of Canadian Superior Energy Inc.:

Steelhead Partners, LLC, is the investment manager of investment limited partnerships and client accounts who beneficially hold over 19 million shares in Canadian Superior. These shares represent approximately 12.9% of the outstanding shares of Canadian Superior's common stock.

On September 26, 2008, we sent you a letter (a copy of which is attached to this letter as Exhibit A) concerning the fact that Canadian Superior Energy Inc. was considering providing a bridge financing facility to Challenger Energy Corp. In that letter, we questioned whether the Canadian Superior directors would be properly discharging their fiduciary duties to Canadian Superior and its shareholders if they decided to approve funding of up to $14 million of Challenger's obligations to Canadian Superior for the expenses related to the drilling program in Trinidad & Tobago.

Our letter asked two direct questions:

First, how could providing a loan to Challenger be deemed to be in the best interests of Canadian Superior and its shareholders, in particular given that Challenger was created with the sole purpose of providing funding for the three well drilling program in Trinidad & Tobago?

Second, how in approving such a transaction could the directors reconcile what appears to be a very significant conflict of interest that results from on the one hand, Greg Noval's sizeable financial interest in Challenger and his position as Chairman of Challenger, and on the other, his position as Chairman of Canadian Superior?

As of today, these important questions have not been answered and we have not received any direct response from Canadian Superior or from any other members of the Canadian Superior Board of Directors. Instead, as we see from Challenger's filings on SEDAR, the Board has approved the bridge facility.

Given the maelstrom that has paralyzed the credit markets, essentially shutting them down internationally, we cannot understand why the Board approved reducing its own cash reserves by extending credit to Challenger. No explanation has been provided to shareholders as to how the bridge facility could be deemed to be in the interests of Canadian Superior and its shareholders. As previously stated, we did not agree to invest new equity capital in Canadian Superior to fund the operations of Challenger. We invested to help Canadian Superior fund its own expenses in Tunisia/Libya, Liberty and Trinidad because we understood that those projects would not be able to move forward in an expeditious manner without additional liquidity / funding.

In light of the approval of the bridge facility, and the conflict of interest issues referred to above, we are left with significant questions about how the members of the Canadian Superior board fulfilled their fiduciary obligations to act with a view to the best interests of Canadian Superior and its shareholders. To help us resolve these questions, we need the Board of Directors to answer the following questions immediately:

1. What process was followed in approving the bridge facility? Why was the transaction considered reasonable and fair to the company and its shareholders? Which directors approved the transaction and which directors abstained from voting on it? Please provide us a copy of the minutes from the board meeting at which this transaction was approved.

2. What other interested party transactions have been approved by the Board of Directors in the last 12 months? What was the process used in approving these prior transactions? Has the Board developed a different process for approving interested party transactions in the future?

3. From the filings Challenger made in connection with its offering, it appears that Challenger currently owes Canadian Superior $16.5 million for the expenses related to the Bounty Well and an additional $4.6 million with respect to costs incurred to date on the Endeavour Well. In addition, it appears that Challenger will owe an additional $6 million to $8 million to Canadian Superior in early 2009 with respect to the Endeavour Well and will owe a total of approximately $24.8 million for all expenses related to Endeavour. Finally, it appears Challenger owes Canadian Superior $28.0 million with respect to the Victory Well. What is the current status of Challenger's obligations to Canadian Superior? Has Challenger used the proceeds from its recent public offering to meet its current obligations? If not, when are amounts owing to Canadian Superior expected to be paid? Has Challenger borrowed any funds from the bridge facility to satisfy its obligations to Canadian Superior? Has Challenger disclosed all amounts it will owe to Canadian Superior going forward?

4. It appears that Challenger was only able to raise the minimum amount of its offering, receiving approximately $28 million in net proceeds. What considerations have been made with respect to Challenger's ability to meet its short term and long term future expense obligations? Given the amount that Challenger currently owes as well as the amount it will owe in the future, how was the Board convinced that Challenger was a good credit risk? Was there any indication that Challenger can be expected to raise the remaining funds it owes to Canadian Superior as well as to raise sufficient funds to repay the $14 million bridge facility?

5. The terms of both the Participation Agreement and the Farmout and Option Agreement between the companies provide that the agreements terminate with no further action on behalf of the parties immediately on Challenger's failure to pay its share of expenses when they are due. What process was followed by the Board in approving waivers of Challenger's defaults under these agreements when it previously failed to pay its share of expenses as they became due? What consideration has Canadian Superior received in exchange for granting these waivers? Why did the Board conclude that granting a waiver of these breaches was fair and reasonable and in the best interests of Canadian Superior?

6. Finally, what processes have been implemented to handle the conflict of interest that exists with Mr. Noval's current role with Canadian Superior?

We continue to be supportive of Canadian Superior and we believe in the management team that CEO Craig McKinzie has put together and the opportunities that they have in front of them. On the other hand, we believe that significant harm can come to a company and its shareholders if the directors fail to properly discharge their fiduciary duties.

We raised important questions to the Board prior to its approval of the bridge facility, but we do not feel that those questions were addressed adequately (or perhaps at all). In order to ensure that shareholders are protected going forward, we believe that the questions raised above need to be addressed immediately. Accordingly, please provide us with answers to the foregoing questions prior to the close of business on Friday, October 10, 2008. Given the importance of the questions, please feel to provide any information and answers you may have as they become available. If we do not hear from you by that date, we will be forced to consider all options legally available to us. We look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

J. Michael Johnston

EXHIBIT A

September 26, 2008

To the Board of Directors of Canadian Superior Energy Inc.:

Steelhead Partners, LLC recently learned of a situation between Challenger Energy Corp. and Canadian Superior Energy Inc. that we feel needs to be carefully considered by the entire Board of Directors.

Our concern arises out of a term sheet we received that was put together by Blackmont Capital Inc., who we understand is advising Challenger on its current capital raise. The term sheet indicated that Canadian Superior would be providing a bridge facility to fund up to $14 million of Challenger's obligations to Canadian Superior for the expenses related to the drilling program in Trinidad & Tobago. The fact that Challenger released a press release yesterday announcing the pricing of an equity financing and a conditional agreement to access $14 million in "additional conditional financing" seems to confirm this concern.

It is unclear from the release whether the Board of Canadian Superior has already approved this bridge facility. In any case, we trust that, in considering any such a transaction, the Canadian Superior directors have formally convened to discuss such an important transaction and would take into account their specific fiduciary obligations to act with a view to the best interests of Canadian Superior and its shareholders. In particular, we believe that the entire Board must consider the following:

First, how can providing a loan, much less the structure as described in the term sheet, be deemed to be in the best interests of Canadian Superior and its shareholders? Challenger was created with the sole purpose of providing funding for the three well drilling program in Trinidad & Tobago. If Challenger is unable to raise the funds necessary on its own to meet its obligations, why should Challenger be entitled to keep its 25% interest in the Trinidad project? In our view, making this loan seems designed purely to protect Challenger's 25% interest in the Trinidad project and to protect Challenger from further share dilution at the expense of Canadian Superior shareholders.

When we agreed last month to invest new equity capital in Canadian Superior, we were led to believe that the company did not have additional borrowing capacity and that additional liquidity was needed to fund the company's own expenses in Tunisia / Libya, Liberty and Trinidad so that these projects could move forward in an expeditious manner. Our investment was not intended to fund the operations of any other entities, including Challenger Energy. In these uncertain economic times and in the midst of one of the most severe credit crunches in US history, we are shocked that the Board of Canadian Superior would be so cavalier as to reduce its own credit capacity and extend credit to an affiliate with no sure manner of repayment.

Second, given Greg Noval's sizeable financial interest in Challenger Energy and his position as Chairman of the Board of Directors of both Canadian Superior and Challenger, how will the Canadian Superior directors reconcile what appears to be a huge conflict of interest? At the least, we expect that the extent of this conflict will be fully disclosed to and discussed by the entire Board, and that Mr. Noval will abstain from all discussions regarding the transaction. Moreover, in order to comply with the requirements of the Company's Bylaws and Code of Conduct, as well as Alberta law regarding approval of interested party transactions, we expect that Mr. Noval will not be permitted to vote on a matter in which he is clearly conflicted. We trust that the independent directors will take their fiduciary duties seriously and discharge them as they must in considering both the bridge facility and the conflict that clearly exists with regard to Mr. Noval's role in Canadian Superior.

If the facility has in fact already been approved, can you please explain how the Canadian Superior directors properly discharged their fiduciary duties to Canadian Superior and its shareholders? As we are sure you are aware, failing to properly discharge such duties could lead to potential liability for Canadian Superior and individual legal liability to Canadian Superior directors.

While we remain supportive of the Company as long-standing shareholders, we would very much like to understand better the Board's procedures and processes in evaluating this transaction and, to the extent the Board has approved any aspect of this transaction, its rationale for doing so. Moreover, we would also like to understand how the Board intends to deal with the conflict that exists with Mr. Noval's current role with the Company. Thank you and we look forward to your response.

Sincerely,

J. Michael Johnston
