Re: Demand for Stockholder List and Other Books and Records

Dear Board of Directors:

As Dell's largest outside beneficial owner, and one of many long-term shareholders who have entrusted their capital to Dell, we reiterate our opposition to the proposed go-private transaction, as well as our deep disappointment with the Board of Directors' failure to implement a transaction that would maximize shareholder value and be more beneficial to all shareholders. The Board of Directors has placed the interests of management above those of public shareholders. Furthermore, it is unfortunate that the members of the Special Committee have such minimal stock ownership, which suggests that their interests may not be fully aligned with those of all shareholders.

First, the Board of Directors has long declined to distribute Dell's growing excess cash to shareholders, labeling it "trapped" overseas due to the tax Dell would incur for repatriating that cash. We were surprised to see this long-standing position change after Silver Lake and the management team announced their intention to bring the cash onshore in order to finance the buyout. A more equitable approach would have returned the cash to all shareholders instead of using it to fund the proposed buyout at the expense of other shareholders. As stated in our February 8 letter, instead of agreeing to a proposed go-private transaction that grossly undervalues the Company, the Board of Directors could have paid all shareholders a special dividend of $12 per share (comprising proceeds from repatriating overseas cash, monetizing Dell Financial Services (DFS) at book value, and raising $9 billion in new debt) with the Company retaining over $1.00 per share of free cash flow.

Second, we strongly disagree with the Company's refusal to comment on the proposed buyout or provide 2012 product segment results during the recent earnings announcement, which served to deprive shareholders of necessary information about their investment. Given the significance of the pending, go-private transaction, shareholders should be provided with meaningful, straightforward information. By changing to product segment reporting going forward, but not providing this information for the period just ended, we believe management is intentionally emphasizing declining PC sales in order to justify its inadequate buyout price. Had management disclosed segment profitability data, it would show that PCs are of low and shrinking importance to Dell, whereas most of Dell's value comes from its healthy, growing Enterprise segment. As a result, the Enterprise segment should command a much higher multiple than implied by the proposed transaction value.

Third, while the Board of Directors characterizes the proposed transaction as a transfer of "the risk of the business to the buyout group," we believe it is more appropriately characterized as a transfer of "the opportunity of the business to the buyout group." Management knows the Company better than anyone, and clearly sees Dell's substantial unrealized value. Under the current buyout proposal, management and Silver Lake stand to receive all of the future upside while denying shareholders, who have paid to reposition the Company, the opportunity to reap the rewards of our investment.

The Board of Directors appears to have dismissed better alternatives for public owners and selected a transaction, which has been publicly derided by shareholders as opportunistic and grossly undervalued, that favors management. We reiterate our demand that the Board of Directors pursue proposals that are more favorable to shareholders. To enable us to communicate with our fellow shareholders on matters relating to our common interests, including the proposed going-private transaction, please find enclosed a demand submitted by Longleaf Partners Fund, our largest client and a Dell shareholder, for various corporate books and other records.

Very truly yours,
