CorpNews Bulletin/EMAIL Blast

A Message from John McGlade:

As you have likely heard by now, Air Products has made an offer to acquire Airgas for $60.00 per share in cash, or a total of approximately $7.0 billion in equity and debt. A copy of the press release we issued this morning can be found here: <http://www.airproducts.com/PressRoom/CompanyNews/Archived/2010/05Feb2010.htm>

Since the news has just become public, I wanted you to hear directly from me about why we are doing this and why now. This is an extremely compelling transaction with undeniable strategic and industrial logic that would bring together two highly complementary organizations, create more value than Airgas or Air Products could each achieve on its own, and provide excellent opportunities for the employees and customers of both. This premium offer for Airgas reflects its complementary capabilities, talented employees and attractive long-term prospects.

As many of you know, this is a business we are very familiar with. We sold our U.S. packaged gas assets to Airgas in 2002, when that business had limited breadth and scope, in order to focus our resources on other growth areas where we could increase shareholder returns – which we have successfully done. We also maintained a strong and profitable packaged gas business in Europe and other key international markets including India, Mexico, China and Southeast Asia, and Brazil. Since 2002, Airgas has done a tremendous job building out their U.S. packaged gas business, primarily through acquisitions. As we look to the future, we see packaged gases as one of the growth areas for Air Products, both within North America and internationally. As a result, we believe it now makes sense to join together to create an even stronger company able to compete more effectively on the global stage.

The combination would join Air Products' strong liquid bulk plant network, significant international packaged gas business, and extensive tonnage gas business with Airgas' leading position in U.S. packaged gases and recognized sales force and distribution expertise. Together we would become the largest industrial gas company in North America and one of the largest globally – a leader with distinctive strengths and world-class competencies across all distribution channels and geographies. This transaction offers significant benefits for both Air Products and Airgas employees who will be part of a broader integrated industrial gas company with greater growth potential. For customers, as a combined company with expanded resources and global scope, we would be well positioned to provide an even more robust product offering.

Let me be very clear: this is only the first step in what may prove to be an extended process, and we can make no assurances about when or if this transaction will be completed. It's important that you don't speculate about this transaction, especially with customers, suppliers and people outside the company. I am sure that many of you will want to help, and we will ask for that help as appropriate. In the meantime, the best thing for everyone to do now is to individually and collectively stay focused on our goals of margin improvement and increased returns through our drive to lower costs. We must stay close to our customers and actively work together to meet and exceed their expectations, maintaining our commitment to excellence. Most importantly, be safe – don't get distracted.

I also want to remind you of our policy not to speak with members of the media or the investment community unless authorized to do so. Should you be contacted by any third party, please refer them to Betsy Klebe in Corporate Communications at (610) 481-4697 or Nelson Squires in Investor Relations at (610) 481-7461.
