Amendment No. 8	October 18, 2016	Introduction of Davis and RSF "spiritual" alignment and how their agenda is contrary to the interests of other shareholders

The following supplements the information provided in the Prior Filings.

Introduction

In its last filing, Amendment No. 8, Meridian addressed the question of "why" Michael Davis has behaved so strangely with respect to his investment in Cyanotech. Davis has, for years, failed to make appropriate disclosures with the SEC concerning his holdings in the company, failed to disclose an apparent control "group" that he created with Rudolph Steiner Foundation, and has, since joining Cyanotech's board in 2003 and becoming its Chairman in 2011, caused the company to pursue policies that have not only limited its potential, but resulted in the company's stock price declining by 54% during a period when the Nasdaq composite increased by 317%.

Meridian believes Davis' unusual behavior is explained by his strong affiliation with the spiritual teachings of Rudolph Steiner, a German-Austrian philosopher and social reformer who died in 1925. In Amendment No. 8, Meridian explained that Steiner was the founder of biodynamic agriculture, which stresses sustainability due to Steiner's belief that "western civilization would gradually bring destruction to itself and the earth if it did not begin to develop an understanding of the spiritual world and its interrelationship with the physical world." Steiner's beliefs and teachings are today carried on by the eponymous Rudolph Steiner Foundation ("RSF") which "seeks to revolutionize how people relate to money" by "transforming what it means to earn a return." RSF's mission is to "redirect the flow of money in local markets, and heal an economy often damaged by exploitation and resource depletion" and its investments made in pursuit of this mission are "return agnostic" and "do not seek market-rate returns as a primary goal."

Since 2003, Davis has demonstrated his support for RSF's mission by donating at least $7 million to RSF and other Steiner-related entities. As explained in Amendment No. 8, Meridian believes Davis chose RSF to be his partner in creating an undisclosed control "group" at Cyanotech due to his understanding of their shared desire to "challenge traditional notions of portfolio theory and investment management" by "de-coupling from Wall Street as much as possible" while "transforming what it means to earn a return" and pursuing investments based upon "the possibility of long-term, continuous zero or negative economic growth precipitated by ecological limits". In short, Meridian believes Davis saw RSF as a partner that would support Davis' desire to run Cyanotech as a "return agnostic" Rudolph Steiner-inspired ecological project rather than in a growth-oriented profit-seeking manner that would be expected by almost any other investor in a publicly-traded company.

These intentions would be of obvious interest to investors who purchased Cyanotech stock for the purpose of realizing a return on their investment and would almost certainly be material when making an investment decision. Nonetheless, none of this information has ever been disclosed by the Company or Davis.

Filigreen Farm

It turns out, that Cyanotech is not the first-time Davis and RSF have collaborated in taking control of a farming operation. In 2000, RSF created an entity, Yggdrasil Land Foundation ("Yggdrasil"), that acquired a farm property in Mendocino County, California. In 2004, Michael Davis created an entity, Ginungagap Foundation, that in turn created Filigreen Farm LLC, which operates the 87-acre farm under a 30-year lease. Filigreen Farm's focus is growing Pinot Noir and Pinot Gris grapes that are used in the production of wine under the "Donkey and Goat"-label.

The Form 990 tax filings for Yggdrasil, Ginungagap and the other not-for-profit entities controlled by Davis and RSF allow tracking of the funds flow back-and-forth among the entities and demonstrates the close long-term working relationship between Davis and RSF. That this was intended from the beginning is evidenced by the selection of complimentary names for their respective entities; "Ginungagap" and "Yggdrasil" are not random words, they are foundation elements within Norse mythology. Yggdrasil is the tree of life, an eternal green Ash tree, with branches that stretch out over all the world and extend up and above to the heavens. Ginungagap is what came before, the dark, lifeless void. Perhaps the symbolism intended by the partners is that Davis would use the Ginungagap entity to acquire "lifeless" assets that would be given value by their contribution into RSF's Yggdrasil (an eternal/perpetual tax-exempt 501(c)(3) entity)?

The assets currently known to involve Davis' Ginungagap entity are Filigreen Farm and Cyanotech. Both projects are being pursued in close collaboration with RSF. Both involve Davis providing the funding; with Filigreen, Davis provided the funds for developing the property, and with Cyanotech, Davis provided the funds for acquiring the shares the two partners hold. Davis also provides the labor, overseeing Filigreen's farming efforts and controlling Cyanotech's board of directors and operations. In return, Davis enjoys the benefits of the properties. This includes frequent stays amid the vineyards of Mendocino and regular first-class travel to Hawaii's Big Island.

Cyanotech: Not a Group, Really?

Since becoming compelled to report his Cyanotech ownership on the correct SEC form, Schedule 13D, Michael Davis has twice made the following sworn statement to the Securities and Exchange Commission on behalf of himself and the entities he controls (the "Reporting Persons"):

"The Reporting Persons expressly disclaim that a "group" within the meaning of Section 13(d)(3) of the Act exists between any of the Reporting Persons and RSF."

Consistent with Davis' attestation, RSF has, to date, maintained its filing status as that of a passive shareholder entitled to report its ownership on short form Schedule 13G. The implication is that RSF also disclaims the existence of a

"group" between any entity it controls and Michael Davis and the entities he controls, since such a "group" would be required to make a combined filing on Schedule 13D.

In the Prior Filings, particularly Amendment No. 7, Meridian analyzed the facts that have, to date, come to light showing the collaboration of Davis and RSF in the acquisition and holding of a control stake in Cyanotech. Meridian believes these facts, including the admission that in 2012 Davis both (x) took to RSF material non-public information, received by the company, that a 9.7% block of shares was for sale and (y) provided RSF with the funds it used to acquire those shares, show that a "group" within the meaning of Section 13(d)(3) of the Securities Act of 1934 was formed by the parties and continues to the present day.

In Amendment No. 8, Meridian supplemented the "what" and "how" aspects of the Davis/RSF "group" with a discussion of the "why". That discussion has been continued in this filing with information that the relationship between Davis and RSF extends well beyond their collaboration in acquiring and holding shares of Cyanotech. Meridian believes that RSF's mission, to preserve land in perpetuity for biodynamic, organic, and sustainable farming, and Michael Davis' strong support of this agenda, can explain the unusual business practices and strategic decisions observed at Cyanotech. Meridian believes these unusual practices and decisions were made to advance the private interests and "spiritual" beliefs of Davis and RSF, and are not in the best interests of Cyanotech or its other stockholders. Moreover, none of this information has ever been disclosed to investors.

Meridian is always interested in hearing from fellow stockholders and has created a special email address to help Cyanotech stockholders contact us.
