Exhibit 99.1

HomeStreet Inexcusably Disenfranchises Shareholders
Blue Lion Capital Pledges to Continue Pursuing Change at HomeStreet

DALLAS, April 2, 2018 /PRNewswire/ -- Blue Lion Capital ("BLC") and its affiliates, which manage funds that own approximately 6.0% of the stock of HomeStreet, Inc. (Nasdaq: HMST) ("HomeStreet" or the "Company"), issued a statement today about the ongoing campaign by the Board of HomeStreet to block any shareholder challenge to the Company's sitting directors.

Blue Lion Capital stated:

"HomeStreet's directors will clearly do whatever it takes to protect themselves from accountability. We find it despicable that they have seized upon technicalities in an attempt to extend their tenure and further entrench themselves.

This is, after all, a Board that has supervised a company fined by the SEC for violating accounting rules and impeding an SEC investigation. It is also a company that has underperformed all of its peers over the past five years and is currently valued lower than virtually every public bank because of investor skepticism about management, the Board and its failed business plan.

No wonder the directors are afraid of losing an election contest.

The brazen actions taken by these directors is perhaps the best evidence yet that they are unsuitable fiduciaries for HomeStreet's shareholders. And even though the Washington State Court may have given these directors a short reprieve with its preliminary ruling, the Board cannot hide from the judgment of the owners or the company's persistently underperforming stock price.

We as shareholders have a fundamental right to be heard. BLC is not the first shareholder to express its displeasure about the sorry state of affairs at HomeStreet. This Company has missed earnings expectations in each of the past five quarters - an unprecedented performance in what has been a bull market for bank stocks. We expect HomeStreet's first quarter earnings for 2018 will be no different. Yet, Mark Mason and the Board apparently only care about themselves and keeping their jobs.

The only real solution for HomeStreet's underperformance is new blood in both the executive suite and the boardroom.

Blue Lion Capital remains fully committed to pursuing the much-needed changes at HomeStreet and we look forward to further communicating with our fellow shareholders soon."
